I feel they were chosen for just the right reason. And I'm super-excited to see what you make with all the prep and colors. I love the colors, even though they're a bit generic. The white, gray and violet make a pretty, subtle graphic; I didn't get the purple in there; and the combo of white and red is bold and contemporary, but it doesn't scream "I'm getting old." The red goes with the green, but the white with the red seems somewhat out of place. But I am a fan of putting a little something different, so I'm not going to criticize. I love the colors and the design, they go together perfectly and it seems to me that a quilt of the primary colors will be more playful and happy. I also like the idea of making a quilt with every color possible. Making a quilt is like making a collage, there is no right or wrong unless you want to. I was planning to get some fabric for the red of the house as a reminder. Well, I am the "blond" one in the comment section. :-) I agree with the first commenter in that it is just a nice enough quilt to be used as a design wall, or even a functional quilt to be used in a guest room. The others are all right on - I love the red & white. Maybe it was a great solution to working with some fabric you don't care for, but have a lot of. I really like that. I really like the red and white, too, but to me the blues just scream "scrap!"... but I wouldn't knock it until I saw the finished guilt. I loved the first and last guilt in this series and can't wait to see what you do with the rest. I'm more the gray/white girl, myself. Especially loved the red and white guilt. Great job, Dee. It's a nice, simple quilt but I wouldn't call it "blah". Just a bit chilly around here in temps approaching those winter highs. I
